we had a great inspection at APES.

They will be making copies of a whole bunch of records to send to us.

We then had a great dinner with paul and talked through some stuff and then went to the public meeting. I would guess there were over 1000 people there. There was a variety of angry to inquisitive but all were very concerned. DEQ had some materials they passed out. Chrome was brought up by one questioner but oddly OHAs docs say that now since the facility is no longer using arsenic and cadmium, everything is safe. EPA was not brought up once, even when someone asked Dave what organizations he was working with. Dave tried really hard but there were a lot of angry people and especially at the end it got more mean spirited. I walked out of there with a renewed urgency to act. We gave Oregon until Tuesday to have a plan for whether they are moving forward with emergency action and I think we need to call them on it tomorrow. We also really need to get in touch with Rhonda or someone at atsd. I didn't get a call back from her but we really need some direct advice from health and we have been waiting a long time.

The plan for tomorrow is to return to orcco to go through records with their records guy and inspect bullseye. Paul is going to confirm the inspection time and plan with (I am sure a very tired) Dave tomorrow. I am sure dave will feel like we are taking away from work he needs to do and I hope instead there is a way to make this a collaborative effort. I told paul I regret that I think jantzen beach has made communications harder here.

I will call in the JB call tomorrow morning at 8:30 for a little bit. i'll try to catch you at 8:15 to answer any other questions, but I think this is beyond serious and we need to act. Unfortunately we can't act until we talk to health.
